Jennifer Sullivan and Annie Pearlman will be presenting the third episode of Sullivan's talk show It's a Process, in which Sullivan interviews artists about their process, performs a "Cathartic Karaoke," and encourages audience interaction through prize-giveaways and cell-phone call-ins. Pearlman will provide a musical performance in keeping with the goal of audience transcendence of past ideas of public, private and progressive social rituals.

8:30-9:30 PM
DAM, STUHLTRAGER
38 Marcy Avenue
Trigger Finger, two Reactive Sculptures set into motion by the hands of their creator,
Mark Andreas

ambulant performance
PARKER'S BOX
193 Grand Street

LA born artist, John Bjerklie (the new new Dodger), has developed parallel identities that face off in his "Hot Head-Cool Head" project, seeing official action in museums, galleries, art centers and collectives across the US and Europe, while also unofficially taking to the streets as two sparring factions, both claiming to be the one and only true incarnation. This potentially explosive love-hate relationship will see representatives of the famous Happy Flaneurs take to the streets of Williamsburg in a parade paralleled by equally famous doppelgangers, the Gesamt-kunstwerkers. Watch out for the sparks flying if and when they come face to face, or head to head....

9-10 PM
FRONT ROOM
147 Roebling Street
Performance by Naval Cassidy. Through his special blend of video performance, Instant Cinema, Naval pulls delirious visions out of discarded broken objects, simply by placing each one under the watchful eye of his surveillance cameras.
